

Mr. Kapil Gonge

After engineering, the very first thing I did is joined a very low profile job and sold SIM cards (I still have joining letter of the small company). Being an introvert, I wanted to challenge myself to kill fear. I failed miserably and quit in 3 months. But learned a lot.

I joined a VFX company Anibrain because I was told the CEO wants to do some experiments and I wanted to work closely to any c-level professional to understand how do they think and do instead of getting locked into managerial bureaucracy.

Got lucky to explore many languages like Python, MEL (Maya Embedded Language), JavaScript, PHP, tcl tk in 18 month tenure there.

An engineering friend was planning to start a startup so I couldn't stop myself to join hands and jumped! From 5 college buddies sitting on bean bag and doing coding, till 50+, we grew in 3 years. Crazy 3 years. Learned pre-sales, marketing, post-sales, client communication, got good command in spoken English. I am a ZP school, marathi medium guy from small village so yes, it was tough in the beginning.

Crazy schedule, no discipline, complicated relationship forced me to drop and took break for few months.

Then in 2013, started PugMarker and till date, we are 20 people team with 4 departments and loving it big time!
